WEEKS 1 & 2 LOCKDOWN - COMMUNITY FEEDING SCHEME UPDATE

Franschhoek's chefs have rolled up their sleeves and are now providing food aid to the local community battered by the economic fallout of the Coronavirus.

Food for Franschhoek

We're used to seeing them on the podiums at international culinary award ceremonies. Or perhaps gracing the pages of the glossies with descriptions of their own version of haute cuisine.

But these days, the chefs of Franschhoek are on a different mission....to provide hundreds of nutritious meals to people in need during the COVID19 pandemic and help many more with food parcels to see them through the crisis.

Many chefs from a wide variety of local restaurants are volunteering long hours and applying their expertise to make thousands of nutritious (and tasty) meals for households in the area.

AS OF 10 APRIL 2020

882

dry goods food parcels already delivered to households across the Franschhoek Valley

1000

hot meal and fresh fruit portions delivered so far to Franschhoek soup kitchens for local communities

160
